

Great Hearts

Heroes of Special Olympics

Rebecca Weber

© 2008
PACIFIC LEARNING

PACIFIC
LEARNING

© 2004 Pacific Learning

© 2004 Written by Rebecca Weber

Edited by Alison Auch

Designed by Anna-Maria Crum

Special thanks to Ryan Fenwick, Allison Hess, and Erin Holloway for sharing their wonderful memories and photos to make this book happen.

Additional photography: Getty Images/Stringer (p. 5); Doug Benc/Getty (p. 6)

All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced or transmitted in any form or by any means, electronic or mechanical, including photocopying, recording, taping, or any information storage and retrieval system, without permission in writing from the publisher.

08 07 06 05 04
10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 1

Published by

Pacific Learning

P.O. Box 2723

Huntington Beach, CA 92647-0723

www.pacificelearning.com

ISBN: 1-59055-444-2

PL-7612

Printed in China.

Contents

	page
Introduction	4
Ryan's Story
Chapter 1: A Promise Kept	8
Chapter 2: A Full Calendar	17
Chapter 3: The Fame Game	26
Allison's Story
Chapter 4: Life at Its Fullest	33
Chapter 5: A New Commitment	39
Chapter 6: Helping Others to Help	44
Erin's Story
Chapter 7: How to Rise Above	56
Chapter 8: Giving Back	63
Chapter 9: Going International	68
Chapter 10: Once a Global Messenger, Always a Global Messenger	73
To Get Involved	78
Index	80
Glossary	80

Introduction

Around the world, there are more than 170 million people who have intellectual disabilities – 170 million! Sadly, while the world seems to be able to count the numbers, many people aren't sure what to do when they meet up with a person who lives with a mental disability.

For many years, whenever a child was born with a physical or developmental disability, doctors were likely to recommend that the child go and live in a home, and not be raised by the family.

There, children would be “warehoused,” often drugged to maintain their good behavior, and without any sort of mental or physical outlet.

Luckily, over the past forty years, people have started to realize that locking away these children and adults – full of life and talent – helps nobody.