

Survival Fun

SAMPLE

PACIFIC
LEARNING

© 2004 Pacific Learning

© 2004 Written by Anna-Maria Crum

Edited by Rebecca McEwen

Designed by Anna-Maria Crum

Photography: Rod Bunn (cover); anthroarcheart.org (pp. 3, 16, 17 [top]); Getty Editorial (pp. 4, 5 [bottom], 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 [bottom], 12, 13, 14 [top], 15, 17 [bottom], 18, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26 [bottom], 27, 29, 30); The Bridgeman Art Library/Getty Images (p. 5); North Wind Picture Archives (p. 11 [top]); Library of Congress (pp. 14 [bottom], 19 [top and center]); Denver Public Library (pp. 19 [bottom], 26 [top]); Rebecca McEwen (p. 28).

All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced or transmitted in any form or by any means, electronic or mechanical, including photocopying, recording, taping, or any information storage and retrieval system, without permission in writing from the publisher.

10 9 8 7 6 5

Published by

Pacific Learning

P.O. Box 2723

Huntington Beach, CA 92647-0723

www.pacificlearning.com

ISBN: 978-1-59055-466-1

PL-7623

Printed in China through Colorcraft Ltd., Hong Kong

Contents

Skills to Survive	4
The Hunt Is On	6
On Horseback	10
Sports, of Course	14
Out in the Cold	18
Say It with Music	22
The Language of Life	28
Conclusion	30
Glossary	31
Index	32

Ceremonial skull ball detail from Chichen Itza

Skills to Survive

Catch a fish or go hungry. Run because your life depends on it. Build a fire or freeze to death. Could you survive in a world that demanded these things?

Today, many people hunt and fish for relaxation. Some run for exercise, relaxation, and sports events. Others ride horses for enjoyment and competition. Many of the things that people do for fun today were necessary skills thousands of years ago. If people couldn't hunt or fish, they might starve, especially in the winter when edible plants are few. Running might save a person's life if a wild animal or an enemy were in pursuit. Riding horses made it easier to cover vast lands in order to follow migrating herds.

Although most people no longer need these skills to survive, many still enjoy their modern-day variations. Now people simply enjoy the thrill of riding a horse, or the beauty of nature while fishing, or the freedom of running.

Anglers use light, flexible rods and colorful flies to attract trout in fast-moving mountain streams.

FISHING

Wall paintings in tombs show ancient Egyptians fishing with rods, nets, and spears. The ancient Greeks and Romans made flies of colorful feathers to attract fish. There are two kinds of modern fishing: commercial and sport. Sport fishing uses the same basic tools and techniques as early anglers. People make flies out of feathers and fish with rods, spears, and nets. One big difference between past and present is the popularity of catch-and-release fishing. Instead of keeping the catch, the fish are returned to the river or lake immediately after being caught.

This painting shows an Egyptian fishing scene.

Commercial fishing changed with engine-powered fishing boats. Fishing trawlers lay down huge nets. Then the boats drag the nets for miles until powerful winches pull them in, capturing thousands of pounds of fish. Because so many fish are caught at once, many parts of the world's oceans are overfished. The large fishing nets don't just catch fish, either. Sea turtles and ocean mammals such as dolphins drown if they are caught in the nets with the fish they are chasing for their own meal.

Large fishing boats have changed the nature of fishing. These boats can go into deep water and catch hundreds of thousands of fish at a time.