

Days Long Ago

Before Reading	During Reading	After Reading
Q1: Let's look at the cover and read the title. Who is on the cover? A1: A little girl and her grandpa are on the cover. Q2: What are they doing? A2: They are looking at a picture album. I think the grandpa is telling the little girl stories about life long ago.	Q1: How did people live long ago? A1: Long, long ago, people rode horses around town. They cooked on the stove. They kept food cold in iceboxes. They played games outside. They rode in trains. They had pets. Q2: How do people today live? A2: People today have cars. They cook on stoves too but have microwave ovens. People today watch TV but play games also. People today ride trains but also ride in jets. People today have pets too.	Q1: Can you think of other activities that we share with people long ago? A1: Answers will vary: The activities we share with people long ago are children going to school, families loving each other, and cooking healthy meals. Q2: What activity from long ago would you like to experience? A2: Answers will vary: I would like to ride a horse to school! I would like to live on a farm. I would like to take a long train ride.

100 Years Ago
© 1998 Creative Teaching Press Inc.
Written by Donna Marriott
Illustrated by Meryl Treatner

Revised Edition © 2017 Creative Teaching Press Inc.
Days Long Ago
Illustrated by Kate Freeman
Art Director: Moonhee Pak
Project Director: Stacey Faulkner

Published in the United States of America by:
Creative Teaching Press Inc.
6262 Katella Ave.
Cypress, CA 90630

Days Long Ago

There were no cars long, long ago.
How did people get around town?

Long, long ago they rode horses.